

Vioelectric HPA V340 provides outstanding headphone performance in excellent manufacture quality

Vioelectric introduces the HPA V340, a high-end headphone amplifier for audiophiles. The new model offers the brilliant circuitry of its bigger brother V550, enabling the V340 to perfectly supply signal to any kind of headphones and any type of drivers. With its high output voltage and high output power, the V340 effortlessly drives low- and high-impedance models and even magnetostatic types. The renowned Pre Gain circuitry enables tailor-fitting the volume control to the headphones of choice, creating a perfect symbiosis of amplifier and driver. Developed and built from top-shelf components in the German manufacture, the V340 never ceases to amaze.

Gauting, Germany, 11th May 2021 – Fine amplifier electronics are a Vioelectric trademark. With the HPA V340, the Constance-based company presents a smaller sibling for the V550 – without compromising on the sound.

Exquisite amplifier electronics for sound enthusiasts

The Vioelectric HPA V340 is a premium-class headphone amplifier. It employs the sophisticated circuits from its bigger brother V550, resulting in an outstanding performance. Its extremely low noise and absolutely neutral reproduction create a sound image of delightful naturalness and enthralling authenticity. Its uncompromising sound qualifies the V340 as the first choice for audiophile listeners who want to get the best out of their headphones.

The ideal amp for all headphones

A Vioelectric speciality is the comprehensive compatibility with headphones of various types. The HPA V340 continues this tradition. It can connect two unbalanced headphones via 6.3-mm jacks while also offering a balanced four-pin

PRESS RELEASE

XLR connector. The elaborate circuit perfectly supplies all kinds of drivers: high output voltage for high-impedance headphones, high output power for low-impedance headphones and even magnetostatic systems. The popular Pre Gain circuit allows for specifically adjusting the amplifier to the preferred model of headphones, creating the ultimate listening experience.

Headphone amplifier and more

The Vioelectric HPA V340 is outfitted with more than just amplification technology. Balanced and unbalanced line outs forward the signal to other hifi components like power amps or active speakers. This option turns the V340 into a central station to easily switch between the two stereo inputs and control their volume. By virtue of this feature, the headphone amp can simply be inserted into an existing signal chain – and improve its sound.

Select components and outstanding craftsmanship

The high-quality Vioelectric products are developed and manufactured in the company's own manufacture at Lake Constance. The experts exclusively use painstakingly selected parts that satisfy the exceptional quality standard. Precise craftsmanship underlines the overall value and longevity of the products that well earn the label "made in Germany".

Price and availability

The Vioelectric HPA V340 is distributed by cma audio exclusively and available immediately. The MSRP is 1,799.00 EUR (including 19% VAT).
